READING Choose the correct answer. (14x2= 28 pts.)

I. Is social media good for society? This is a question for educators, parents, and young people. Many people enjoy using social platforms. While using social media, some share their daily lives, others connect with friends and family. 20 years ago, people communicated mainly through phone calls or face-to-face interactions. They had traditional methods to talk to each other.

II. Today, many people have a different way of connecting. They don't communicate in the outdated ways such as writing letters, sending postcards. Many use social media platforms. Their talks take place on their smartphones, tablets, and computer screens. Social media fans say that they enjoy it because it is so easy to connect online. It is attractive, but some people say it is more than that. They argue that social media may be harmful!

III. Some believe that social media negatively affects people's mental health. People shouldn't spend too much time online. To have a good mental health, people need real-life talk. They need to have face-to-face chats. They need honest connections. People who use social media spend too much time looking at others' lives. Using social media can also be negative for people's studies. These days, many people say they cannot live without social media. However, having real-life goals helps people be more successful. People can be happier and healthier. Real-life experiences are more enjoyable than online chats.

IV. However, some argue the opposite. They say social media isn't bad for society. Too much of anything--even social media--can be harmful. But as long as people use it in a good way, there's nothing harmful about social platforms. Using social media can even help people. People do need real-life connections. But they also need ways to stay in touch when their friends or families are far from them. Many social media platforms can help make the world smaller and more connected. They let users learn about different cultures and perspectives. Finally, people can use social media for positive social change. But using social media as a tool for connection and learning isn't harmful. What about you? How often do you use social media?

I. I am Yuki. I will tell you all about me. I am ten years old, and I go to school. I was born in Tokyo, Japan. I know Japanese and English from school. I can also speak Korean. Do you know why? My grandmother is from South Korea! Many years ago, my grandmother came to Japan. When she arrived, she spoke only Korean. While I was growing up, I learned to speak Japanese and English, and picked up some Korean from her.

II. My grandmother came to Japan from a city in South Korea called Seoul. She wanted to study art and continue her dream of becoming a painter. She worked hard and saved money, and now we have many of her beautiful paintings in our house. My grandmother also worked hard to learn Japanese. She practiced every day and now speaks it fluently. Every Sunday, our cosy living room is filled with art supplies. The whole family works together to create art. My mom and dad are there. My grandmother's sister, Aunt Mina is there, too. Everybody loves laughing and sharing ideas while painting together. Especially my cousins join us once a month.

III. Last week, I and my little sister Hana were also in the living room. She is seven years old. In our living room, we are a team. Everybody comes to the art session. My father prepares the canvas. My mom mixes the paints and my aunt is good at drawing! It is my and my sister's job to clean the brushes for our family. We wash them carefully in the sink. We are good at taking care of the art materials!

IV. "Pass me that palette," Hana said to me. Next, she mixed blue and yellow paint to make green. Soon, it became a beautiful shade for the trees in her painting. People use different colours to show their feelings. I chose warm colours for my sunset picture. Then we used a hairdryer to dry the paint faster. The hairdryer was my dad's idea. He always comes up with good ideas.

V. "Remember to clean your brushes well," my grandmother told us. In that way, the brushes would last longer and be ready for the next painting session. I love creating landscapes, portraits, and abstract art. My favourite painting has bright, bold colours. Every time we have our art sessions, I and my sister play a game. We try to use more colours than the other. So far, Hana is the winner. "Maybe someday I'll win. The paintings make our house colourful and happy."

34. How many languages can Yuki speak?
? a) One b) Two c) Three d) Four
35. Why did her grandmother come to Japan?
a) To be safe b) To study art
